ly disseminated throughout the provinces and some sudden madness were to jettle upon the passantry, who for the first ting saw their "little Pather" revealed in his travelors. In such a case it is very possible to imagine a general revolt taking place in which at the other disaffected elements in the Empire, from Poland to Russian Armenia, and trem Finland to the Jewish Pale, would spring into life. But it may well be doubted whether an immediate and general revolutionary movement is possible, for while war is going on the intent of national self-preservation seems to keep down rebellion even in States whose gene all condition makes for revolution.

ral condition makes for revolution.

The fall of Port Arthur has no doubt The fall of Fort Arthur has no doubt been a great factor in bringing about the present orisis, for it has brought home to the people the real position of affairs in the Par East, which has bitherto been obscured by the mendacious optimism of an inspired Press. They see that trade is falling, that employment is evermors earned, that factories are closing, and that a state of semi-stravation exists in many rural district; and they ask themselves for what purpose is this way! Their own country is not threaten.

and they ask themselves for what purpose it this war! Their own country is not threaten-ed, and like the rest of the world they cannot understand what business their Government has in Mancharia at all. Accordingly they deteat this unnecessary war, and their feeling is shown in the increasing difficulty which the Russian War Uffice experiences in getting the Reservists to join the colors. But there are even graver elements of disaffection at work amongother great sections of the pupilation, be-sides the actual Russians themselvas. The last ten years has seen the growth within Russians of THATE OF THE MOON.

Dear Sir.—I beg to enclose the copy of a letter, which I have sent to the Managing Editor of the "Egyptian Graphic," and I hope that in the interests of every British subject, as well as those of justice and fair play, you may see your way to inserting it in the columns of your worthly and esteemed paper, which has always to my knowledge (of 20 years) refrained from what can only be designated as "atabs in the dark." Thanking you in anticipation,

Vours very truly,
J. W. Congdon,
Cairo, 22nd January, 1905.

DETAILED REPORT.

It was announced on Wednesday that the list of invitations to the Ball given by his his highmas the Khedive on the 20th instant was closed, over 1,400 invitations having already been issued. Judging from the crowded aspect of the rooms at Abdeen Palace on Priday evening, there can have been but few absences from this, the most important social function of the Cairo Season.

In view of the enormous number of his view of the enormous number of his guests, the Khedivic confined himself to receiving only the most important, among whom the control of the contr

In the early part of the evening the Khedivah received a number of the lady guests in a saloon near the ball-room. The Khedives enterctained the principal guests of the evening at supper in a private room; the large supper-room was thrown open at midnight and the long tables which lined it on three sides were immediately besigned. In a short time the rast asloon became so crowded that it was difficult to find atanding room. The fare provided was of the most sumptions kind, and almost justified the scramble that was made to procere it. procure it.

Amid such a galaxy of pretty dreases it is difficult to single out any for special remark. The Countess of Crumer wore a stately gown of oyster-white satin; Jime. van der Does de Villetois looked well in a mauve dress, and her daughters wore trocks of pale yellow and pale blue cripe de Chine respectively. Mrs. Findlay was in a black dress with sequin trimming. Lady Paluer wore light blue arranged with cream-colored net. Lady Rogers also were blue, a striking gown of dark, 'copal blue' shade, a striking gown of dark,' toppal blue' shade, relieved by white muslin and lace at the neck and sleeves. Scon after one o'clock the greats began to depart, but it was not inpill a minch later bour that the last of them had quitted the palace. The police arrangements for control ling the carrages or route for Abdeen appeared to be very complete, a strong force dominanted the entristic to Abdeen Street and lined its whole length. The years was well preserved, but we are inclined to think that the infinipinktuo of the traffic Joining the man from the side streets was not as perfect as it has 'been on' former occasions, and canned some nanocessary delay.

oiled for the present by our gallant allies ar as Manchuria is concerned, Russia musso far a Mauchura is somectured, Russia must wener or later turn her eyes once more to lindia. For such an invasion she requires no Redjestvensky. Her troops are practically on the frontier, her railways are ready to be lade, and the plan of campaign has been carefully prepared. To resist such an attack, instant reinforcements from this country would be ab-solutely necessary. That means fast transports to B-unbay and Karachi rail the Sucr Canal.

A POSSIBILITY.

A POSSIBILITY.

Now, without suggesting for a moment the possibility of any sympathetic laxity on the part of the custodians of the Canal, it is obvious that "a regretable incident" in the shape of an "accidental" obstruction of the waterway might easily be brought about at a crisis when delay would be of vital importance to us; in fact, if my memory serve me correctly, something of the kind did actually occur during the period of the Arab Crusbies, when troops from India were delayed by the stranding of a merchant scenare which was not removed until Lord Almester Unreademed to send up a force of blue-parkets to do the work. It is quite true that our fleets can protect the ends of the Canal, but it is not at the ends the mischief would occur, but in the fairway, open to merchant ships of all nations.

RACING AT KHARTOUM.

(PROM OUR CORRESPONDENT

Khartoum, January 13.

The Khartoum Second Winter Meeting was beld to-day in delightfully cool but sumps weather. H.E the Governor General, who drove on the course in a 30 h.p. Wolsely motor car, as well as an unusually large number of the fair sex, honored the proceedings with their presence. The sport on the whole was somewhat tacking in interest, as on the form exposed at the last meeting, four out of the stir events open to members of the Khartoum Racing Club were foregone conclusions. Mr. Trafford again won three races, whilst the winners of the other three all hailed from Sheadi.

This was the best race of the day and reflected will on the handicapper as the first three ponies were only separated by a neck. Coming round the corner 3 turiongs from home Sinbad was leading, when Linshallah going very wide carried Gamil out with him. These two then fought out a dingelong funish, which however only resulted in a dead heat for second place as Bimbadi, keeping an inside course, won cleverly by a neck standard was last.
